On August 28, 2009, the Company acquired convertible bonds in the principal amount of HK$18,200,000 and 50,000,000 shares, which were issued by a Hong Kong listed company, engaged in the business of energy and resources development. Notwithstanding the upheavals in the financial markets, the measures that have been adopted by the investment committee and the Board of the Directors have enabled us to achieve positive results as well as enhance our future business prospects.

4.5 Investment Evaluation Process

The Company evaluates securities of a public issuer or a privately-held company using an evaluation method consistent with the method used to evaluate securities of other public issuers or private companies in the same industry. In selecting securities for the Company's portfolio, the board of directors and management consider various factors, including, but not limited to the following:

- the inherent value of its assets or intellectual property (in the case of a technology or biotechnology company);
- proven management, clearly-defined management objectives and strong technical and professional support;
- future capital requirements to develop the full potential of its business and the expected ability to raise the necessary capital;
- anticipated rate of return and the level of risk;
- financial performance; and
- exit strategies and other criteria.

4.6 Investment Valuation Policy

For each financial reporting period, management estimates the fair value of investments based on the criteria below and reflects such valuations in the consolidated financial statements:

Publicly traded investments – the fair value of financial instruments traded in active markets is based on quoted market prices at the end of the reporting period. The quoted market price used for financial assets held by the Company is the current bid price.

Privately held investments – Fair value of financial assets which are not traded in an active market is estimated based on an analysis of:

- financial position and results of the investee;
- risk profile of the investee;
- nature of business of the investee;
- prospects of the investee;
- other factors and assumptions not supported by observable market prices or rate;
- reference to recent market valuations for similar entities quoted in an active market;
- current fair value of comparable investments that is substantially the same or applicable price/earning ratios for similar listed companies adjusted to reflect the circumstances of the investee; and
- discounted cash flow method.

Based on the directors' analysis on each of the privately-held investments, the directors consider that it is appropriate to estimate the fair values of a majority of these investments based on their net asset value attributable to the Company.

4.8 Industry Overview and Competitive Conditions

Hong Kong is widely recognised as the leading fund management centre in Asia with the largest concentration of international fund managers according to a survey conducted by the Securities and Futures Commission.

The Chinese mainland has opened up its fund management industry since it joined the World Trade Organisation. Hong Kong is expected to play a key role in sharing its skills and experiences in fostering the development of China's fund management industry.

To strengthen Hong Kong's position as an international asset management centre in the region, the Hong Kong government eliminated estate tax and exempted offshore funds from profit tax.

The fund management industry comprises asset management, advisory business and other private banking businesses. Hong Kong's fund management industry is characterised by its international and offshore nature.

Hong Kong's fund management industry has developed a strong expertise concerning investing in Asia, particularly in the Chinese mainland. Such expertise is vital to Hong Kong's ability to attract funds for management.

The Company is a small boutique investment company with HK$309 million of shareholders' funds under management. The Company plays a small role in competing for the investment potential China offers.

5. RISK FACTORS

The following is a summary of certain risk factors inherent in the Company's businesses and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, and must be read in conjunction with, the detailed information appearing elsewhere in this Annual Information Form. These risks and uncertainties are not the only ones facing the Company. Additional risks and uncertainties not currently known to the Company, or that the Company currently considers immaterial, may also impair the business of the Company. If any such risks actually occur, the business, financial condition, liquidity and results of operations of the Company could be materially adversely affected.

5.1 Risks of Investing in China

The Company holds investments in China. China's economy and legal system differ from those of most developed countries in many respects, including the level of development and transparency. The Company will be affected by any political or economic instability in China. Changes in investment policies or shifts in political attitude in China may adversely affect the Company's businesses. Operations will also be adversely affected in varying degrees by government regulations including but not limited to restrictions on production, price controls, income taxes, and expropriation of property. The introduction of new policies, legislation or amendments to existing policies or legislation by various levels of government in China or the interpretation of those laws in China or elsewhere could impact adversely on the financial performance of the Company.

5.2 Risk of Limited Number of Investments

The Company intends to participate in a limited number of investments and, as a result, the aggregate return of the Company may be substantially adversely affected by the unfavourable performance of even a single investment. In addition, as the Company's investments are concentrated in certain sectors, the Company's performance will be disproportionately subject to adverse developments in those sectors.

5.3 Marketability of the Company's Investments

The Company often makes direct investments in publicly-traded securities. The value of these investments may be affected by factors such as investor demand, resale restrictions, general market trends and regulatory restrictions. Fluctuation in the market value of such investments may occur for a number of reasons beyond the control of the board of directors of the Company, and there is no assurance that an adequate market will exist for investments made by the Company. Many of the investments made by the Company may be relatively illiquid and may decline in price if a significant number of such investments are offered for sale by the Company or other investors.

The Company also invests in securities of privately held companies. Investments in privately held companies may be relatively illiquid. As a result, it may impair the Company's ability to react quickly to market conditions or negotiate the most favourable terms for exiting such investments. Investments in privately held companies may offer relatively high potential returns, but will also be subject to a relatively high degree of risk. There can be no assurance that a public market will develop for any of the Company's private company investments or that the Company will otherwise be able to realize a return on such investments.

The value attributed to securities of privately held companies will be the cost or net asset value thereof, subject to adjustment in limited circumstances, and therefore may not reflect the amount for which they can actually be sold. Since valuations, and in particular valuations of investments for which market quotations are not readily available are inherently uncertain, may fluctuate within short periods of time and may be based on estimates, determinations of fair value may differ materially from the values that would have resulted if a ready market had existed for the investments.

5.4 Due Diligence

The due diligence process that the Company undertakes in connection with investments may not reveal all facts that may be relevant in connection with an investment. Before making investments, the Company conducts due diligence that it deems reasonable and appropriate based on the facts and circumstances applicable to each investment. When conducting due diligence, the Company may be required to evaluate important and complex business, financial, tax, accounting, environmental and legal issues. Outside consultants, legal advisors, accountants and investment banks may be involved in the due diligence process to varying degrees depending on the type of investment. Nevertheless, when conducting due diligence and making an assessment regarding an investment, the Company relies on the resources available to it, including information provided by the target of the investment and, in some circumstances, third-party investigations. The due diligence investigation that is carried out with respect to any investment opportunity may not reveal or highlight all relevant facts that may be necessary or helpful in evaluating such investment opportunity. Moreover, such an investigation may not necessarily result in the investment being successful.

5.5 Reliance upon the Directors and Management

Shareholders must rely upon the expertise and discretion of the board of directors and management of the Company in selecting and investing in securities, the composition of the portfolio of such securities owned or acquired by the Company and in determining whether to dispose of any securities held by the Company. The success of the Company will be dependent upon the board of directors and management of the Company successfully identifying and managing the Company's investments. Accordingly, the Company's continued success will depend upon the continued services of these individuals who are not obligated to remain employed with the Company. The loss of the services of any of these individuals could have a material adverse effect on the Company's revenues, net income and cash flows and could harm the Company's ability to maintain or grow its existing assets and raise additional funds in the future.

5.6 Currency and Foreign Exchange Rate Risks

A substantial proportion of the Company's investments are made in Hong Kong dollars and Chinese Renminbi. The Company may also invest in securities denominated or quoted in other foreign currencies. Therefore, changes in currency exchange rates as well as associated transaction costs could adversely affect the value of the Ordinary Shares during any period. In addition, the Company could also make investments in jurisdictions which may place restrictions on the repatriation of funds. The Company does not enter into hedging or derivative arrangements to manage its foreign exchange risk.

5.7 Liquidity Risk

Should the Company be unable to dispose of any portion of the Company's portfolio, the Company may experience delays in receiving the proceeds of disposition of any security within the portfolio until such time as the Company is able to dispose of such securities. Further, should the Company wish to acquire particular securities for the Company's portfolio, the Company may be unable to acquire the desired quantity of such securities at a price acceptable to the Company should the market for such security prove illiquid.

Further, investments in small capitalization companies or privately held companies tend to be less liquid than other types of investments. Due to the Company's investment in small or unlisted companies that can be affected by political and economic events, the securities within the Company's portfolio may be difficult to value or sell. As a result, these securities may trade at values significantly lower than their true value. This may result in the Company's difficulty in converting these securities into cash in a timely and cost effective manner.

5.8 Interest Rate Risk

Due to the Company's investment strategy and portfolio composition, the value of the securities within the Company's portfolio may fluctuate with changes in interest rates. These changes mean that the market price for the securities held in the Company's portfolio will be affected by prevailing interest rates.

5.9 Speculative Nature of Ordinary Shares

The investment in the Ordinary Shares of the Company is speculative in nature and suitable only for investors able to sustain a substantial loss of their investment. Shareholders should not rely upon realizing any significant returns from the Ordinary Shares and should be aware that the value of the Ordinary Shares and the income from them could, in common with other shares and bonds, fluctuate. There is no assurance that the investment objectives of the Company will actually be achieved.

5.10 Trading Price of Shares relative to Net Asset Value

The Company is neither a mutual fund nor an investment fund and due to the nature of the Company's business and investment strategy and the composition of its investment portfolio, the market price of the Ordinary Shares, at any time, may vary significantly from its net asset value per share. This risk is separate and distinct from the risk that the market price of the Ordinary Shares may decrease.

6. DIVIDENDS

The Company pays dividends to the holders of its Ordinary Shares on an annual basis, in amounts determined by the board of directors on the basis of the Company's earnings, financial requirements and other conditions. The Company's declaration of dividends is subject to the applicable rules under the Companies Law of the Cayman Islands. No dividend may be declared or paid other than from funds lawfully available for distribution including share premium. The cash dividends declared per share for the Ordinary Shares of the Company for each of the three most recently completed financial years are as follows:

Class of Security	Date of distribution	Payment per security	Total cash payment	Total non-cash payment

Ordinary shares	September 28, 2009	HK$0.10	HK$3,905,861	Nil
Ordinary shares	May 29, 2008	HK$0.17	HK$6,630,444	Nil

7. DESCRIPTION OF CAPITAL STRUCTURE

As at the date of this Annual Information Form, there were no shares held in escrow, and 39,058,614 Ordinary Shares and no preferred shares were issued and outstanding. The Company is authorized to issue a maximum of 100,000,000 Ordinary Shares with a nominal value of HK$1.00 per share. The holders of the Ordinary Shares are entitled to vote at all shareholder meetings and to receive such dividends as the board of directors, in their discretion, shall declare or recommend. The Company did not hold any securities in escrow and did not hold any securities that were subject to contractual restrictions in 2010.
